

1 in 5 women procuring an abortion are college aged and that half of the women walking into an abortion clinic today have been there before.

Feminists for Life reports that in just one year, for example, at one university in the Northeast, based on figures provided by the school's health center and a nearby pregnancy care center: Of 3,000 college women, 600 had pregnancy tests; 300 of these tests were positive; and 6 women had babies.

Considering this, it is safe to assume that there are women and men on your campus who need to be invited back to the Church and back to the God who loves them. Our response to this is to let them know that there is hope and offer an invitation to find healing and reconciliation in Christ, the Divine Physician.
